

Heinz College of Information Systems and Public Policy Partnership Agreement

As a Partner University, Carnegie Mellon's Heinz College will provide scholarships to FAIT Fellows enrolling in its eligible master's programs. The scholarship amount covers the difference between the FAIT Fellowship tuition assistance and the cost of tuition at Heinz College.

Scholarship for FAIT Fellows

Heinz College at Carnegie Mellon University will provide FAIT Fellows enrolling in its eligible master's programs a merit-based scholarship for an amount equal to the difference between the Heinz College tuition and the FAIT Fellowship tuition assistance.

The scholarship is awarded for the first year of study and is renewable in the second year provided the student remains in good academic standing, maintaining above a 3.0 GPA in their first year.

Eligible Programs

FAIT Fellows are eligible to enroll in the following four-semester master's programs offered by Heinz College:

- MS in Public Policy and Management-Data Analytics Pathway (MSPPM-DA)
- MS in Information Security Policy and Management (MSISPM)

Application for Admission

Heinz College will waive its application fee and extend the January 10 published admission application deadline to March 10, for all students who apply to the FAIT Fellowship program. Applicants to Heinz College should indicate on their application and resumé that they are applying for the FAIT Fellowship.

FAIT Fellowship finalists who are not selected for the Fellowship will be given equal consideration for merit-based awards from the school after the published admissions date of January 10. All FAIT Fellowship finalists will be considered for other merit-based awards offered by Heinz College. No separate application is required.

Opportunities for Additional Income at Heinz

In addition to the annual stipend support from the FAIT Fellowship, Fellows can earn $5,000+ per year via RA, TA and/or off-campus internships throughout the academic year.
